CHAIRPERSON'S AND CHIEF EXECUTIVE'S REPORT 2015

We are pleased to present the annual report of the Otago Community Trust for the year ended 31 March 2015.

The Trust has experienced a very positive year, with the Investment Portfolio returning 13.8% or $30.95m. As a result, the total Trust Investment Portfolio at the end of the year rose to $263.6m.

The Trust's investment goals are to return as much as possible to the Otago Community through donations, as well as preserving the real value of the initial capital of the Fund. This is achieved through careful investment activity, with the Trust making use of a reserving graphing tool to guide decisions around the level of donations it can provide to the community year-on-year. This ensures the real value of the original capital of the Trust is protected whilst endeavouring to maintain equity between different generations of beneficiaries.

Last year the Trust processed nearly 400 applications from donation applicants from all over Otago. The online application process we introduced this year saw 11% of applications come to us online, something that will continue to grow.

DONATIONS FOR 2014-2015

In the 12 months to 31 March 2015 Trustees approved donations totalling $4.3m.

The Trust continued its commitment to three main priority areas during the year, being Warm Homes, the region's Cycle Ways and Youth Health and Wellbeing. These donations amounted to over $500,000.

The Trust contributed $400,000 to insulating low-income households in Otago through the Warm Up New Zealand: Healthy Homes programme. This brings the number of Otago homes insulated to around 1,000, directly impacting on the lives of several thousand residents. It is widely acknowledged that improving the energy efficiency of homes has a direct impact on health and wellbeing.

Once again the Trust was able to donate funding towards strengthening systems of service delivery in community wellbeing organisations. In 2014, 14 organisations received funding for IT upgrades, policy and resource development and staff training initiatives.

Other significant donations during 2014-2015 included $290,000 towards the upgrade of the Sunnyvale Sports Centre, $200,000 towards the purchase of the Dunedin Night Shelter buildings, $100,000 to the Otago Museum towards the development of its new Planetarium, and $90,000 to help with pest eradication in Martins Bay on the West Coast. The Trust makes a significant contribution towards sport, donating over $800,000 to regional sporting organisations in 2014-2015. The region's Social Service Agencies and Community Wellbeing Organisations collectively also received a significant donation of over $450,000 to help fund the various programmes they provide to assist our communities.

THE COMING YEAR

Conscious of the need to safeguard the assets of the Trust, the donations budget for the 2015-16 year has been set at $6.9m. This is an increase on recent years, and is a return to a level more in line with donations budgets pre the 2008 Global Financial Crisis. $1.4m of this budget is being set aside to fund the Trust's priority areas which include Warm Homes, Cycle Ways and Youth Health and Wellbeing (focusing on employment, education and training).

The Trust continues to monitor with interest the impact that our funding makes within our communities.

TRUST COMPOSITION

Our Chair Lauren Semple stood down in May to concentrate on other activities; we are grateful that she has agreed to stay on as a Trustee as she brings a wealth of knowledge to the Trust Board. Ross McRobie has taken over the role of Chair, and Stephen Kornyei was appointed as Deputy Chair. The Trust Board comprises 11 Trustees who represent the various areas of the Otago Region. We are appreciative of all our Trustees for their commitment, enthusiasm and hard work.

Trustees continue to be well supported by a small but dedicated team of staff who are always willing and able to assist community groups. We continue to strive to fulfil our mission to support, encourage and enhance Otago communities by responsibly managing and wisely sharing the resources which have been entrusted to us.

The Trust ends the 2015 year positively and we look forward to working with members of the community on a wide range of projects in the year to come.

ART AND CULTURE

What better way to showcase Central Otago’s art to out-of-town visitors than to have it in the cafes and hotels located near the Otago Rail Trail.

Thirty nine venues opened their doors to local artists during the inaugural Art on the Rail Trail exhibition from February to April 2015, and it’s now planned to become an annual event.

Organiser Maxine Williams said the artists, musicians and poets, the venue owners and the many thousands of cyclists and walkers using the track were all very enthusiastic about the initiative.

“The collaboration has been fantastic. It’s a new way to support local artists, many of who sold their art, and it’s given the venues another attraction and some fresh new art to look at.”

“We’re very grateful to the Otago Community Trust for its donation towards organising the event and printing brochures – we couldn’t have done it without that initial support.”

performers, producers, writers, audio engineers, managers and others involved in the music industry together to better understand how to manage music talent. Musicians aged from 10 to 68 from around New Zealand attended the event, which included a workshop from well-known New Zealand artist Dave Dobbyn.

Organiser Lynne Christie said the feedback was very enthusiastic, and it’s expected this will become an annual event. “Thanks so much to the Community Trust for being one of the first to put their hands up to help – it made it so much easier to attract further support.”

The event attracted international guests and much loved New Zealand writers as well as drawing on a wealth of literary talent from Dunedin, New Zealand’s UNESCO City of Literature.

Attendees were treated to nearly 40 events over six days, including many free events such as the DWRF literary lunch series. Sell-out and capacity events included the Story-time train to Port Chalmers library for kids, the Slam Poetry competition and the mass book launch “Chain Reaction” at the historic Athenaeum Library. Additional writers’ workshops for young adults and adults were slotted in to meet demand.

SHAKESPEARE IN DUNEDIN

The Otago Community Trust helped Dunedin host a residential course for Shakespearean secondary school students this year, something that was so successful it’s likely to return to the city again.

The students took part in the national annual University of Otago Sheilah Winn Shakespeare Festival at Queen’s Birthday weekend. Organised by the Shakespeare Globe Centre New Zealand, Festival participants attended talks and workshops to learn performance skills, then produced and costumed a Shakespeare play.

The festival in Dunedin also fitted in a mystery tour of the city, ending at Larnach’s Castle.

The Festival is open to the winners of 23 regional Shakespeare competitions, where secondary students perform a five minute student-directed and 15 minute adult or student-directed scene.

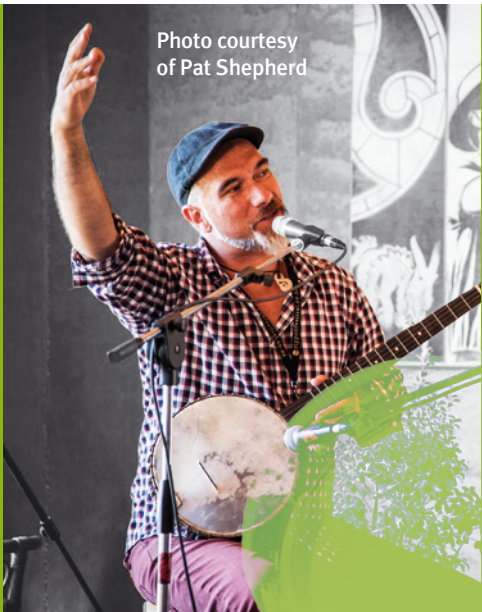

A group of 24 students who attended the Festival have since gone on to train with the Young Shakespeare Company at the Globe Theatre in London, to put on two public performances.

MAKING MUSIC IN WANAKA

Wanaka played host to the first music career workshop for the New Zealand music industry, thanks to support from the Otago Community Trust.

KAPA HAKA TEAM LOOKING GOOD

The Alexandra School kapa haka group looked very smart at the Polyfest in Invercargill last year, thanks to some timely funding from the Otago Community Trust.

The Trust provided funding towards uniforms for the 40 senior students performing at the event.

Teacher Anne Batchelor said the group had formed in 2012, and performing at the large Polyfest for the first time was “huge” for the students, as was staying overnight on a marae in Bluff. “The uniforms made a difference to us, and we’re pleased that they’ll be there for students for many years to come.”

LEARNING ABOUT ROBOTICS

Robotic equipment is proving a popular new purchase for South Otago High School.

The Otago Community Trust helped to fund robotic lego sets for a lunchtime club at the school, designed for interested students to make and to programme robotic objects.

Co-ordinator Amanda Smith said it’s an enrichment opportunity with an engineering and programming component but it’s also lots of fun. “It’s opening new concepts for the school, and it’s been really exciting to see what the students have been able to make in the few weeks we’ve had the equipment. We’re really looking forward to taking it to a new level with learning about programming – the sky’s the limit.”

LEARNING VALUABLE LIFESKILLS

The support of the Otago Community Trust helped reduce barriers so people could attend a LifeSkills programme run by REAP-Central Otago, to learn new skills.

The Otago Community Trust helped to fund the 2015 Life Skills programmes held in Cromwell, Wanaka and Alexandra. These targeted second chance learners or people who needed help in running a home on a limited budget.

Programmes were offered on preserving summerfruit, cooking on a budget and basic sewing. The Otago Community Trust’s support meant the course could be offered at no cost and included childcare when required.

There were many successful outcomes to this programme, with heart-warming stories of learners gaining confidence, meeting new friends and developing a range of useful everyday skills.

WAREPA SCHOOL CELEBRATES NEW FACILITY

The Warepa School just south of Balclutha is so proud of its new outdoor court, its pupils wrote music and created a school dance specifically to celebrate its opening.

Established in 1858, Warepa School is one of the oldest schools in South Otago.

The Otago Community Trust donated funds towards the new AstroTurf court, which Warepa School Principal Sue Adcock said will be used for everything including netball, tennis, hockey, basketball, and football. As well, it will be a good wet day alternative for play, an outdoor extension to the classroom during fine weather, and the community will make full use of it outside school hours.

“We have a roll of 53, growing to 59 by the end of the year, so it was a huge effort for a small school to fundraise - the opening was a huge celebration. We appreciate the support of the Trust and the community”.

The Otago Community Trust is pleased to be a long-time supporter of Kids Camp New Zealand.

The Trust provided $5000 towards the camp, which gives 30 marginalised children from Dunedin a week of fun-filled activities at Camp Columba at Pukerau in Southland.

Kids Camp spokesman Paul Barham said the focus is very much on the child, with one-to-one support from a caregiver.

“We have a bunch of activities that are fun and challenging, often exposing the kids to new things and taking them out of their comfort zone, like abseiling. It gives a great sense of achievement and hope.”

“It’s a week off from reality, and the emphasis is on treating the children as special and giving positive examples of working with others. We’re grateful for the funding support to help organise it and provide transport.”

TRAINING SEARCH AND RESCUE VOLUNTEERS

Preparation is a crucial aspect of search and rescue, which is why the Otago Community Trust donated money to Marine Search and Rescue (MSAR) for volunteer training.

Dunedin Marine Search and Rescue is a not-for-profit organisation made up of highly skilled volunteers from many groups including surf lifesaving. It assists the New Zealand Police in Dunedin with search and rescue operations on the water - covering a huge area of local coastline, harbour and inland waterways.

The group includes a specialist water rescue squad of 10 who are trained for rescue from a helicopter.

Regular training is a prerequisite for Search and Rescue, and MSAR welcomes the funding of the Otago Community Trust to assist in training and skills development.

STRAIGHT UP TRUST

The key to the programmes being offered by the Straight Up Trust are focusing on the strengths of the young people they work with.

The Trust has youth development programmes in South Dunedin that help with leadership and life skills in young people. It runs several youth clubs and also has youth workers managing programmes in Dunedin schools that help children to build social and emotional resilience.

The Otago Community Trust provides funds towards community programmes.

“Everything we do is strength-based, so that each young person has the opportunity to understand what they’re good at, not just what they get wrong,” organiser Kristin Jack said. “Over the 12 years we’ve been running we’ve had positive feedback from teachers, caregivers and adults who’ve attended a youth group as a young person, that this empowers and is making a difference in the community.”

DUNEDIN YOUTH ON-AIR

The Youth Zone programme is giving Dunedin young people the opportunity to produce radio shows.

Otago Access Radio (OAR) is hosting the Youth Zone programmes, made for and about young people. So far 43 people have hosted programmes across five hours of radio time a week, and they’ve interviewed 162 guests. Programmes include Global Kids, where young people interview youth from different cultures, and a musicology slot.

OAR Manager Lesley Paris said it’s worked exceptionally well. “We’re providing opportunities for young people to develop a range of skills, including interviewing, and the programmes they produce are what young people are interested in. We’re thrilled that the kids are choosing to be involved more with the radio station and volunteering in other areas. We’re very grateful to have the Community Trust’s support to make this happen.”

DUNEDIN'S CHATBUS - MAKING A DIFFERENCE

Dunedin's ChatBus is making a difference in the lives of the city's young people.

Now in its eighth year, the free mobile counselling service for children under 14 regularly visits 16 primary and intermediate schools to offer a friendly ear to children who need someone impartial to talk to. Organiser Averil Pierce started the service to help reduce New Zealand's alarming suicide rate and instances of child abuse, working on the premise that early intervention achieves the best results.

It now has three buses, with the Otago Community Trust helping to fund the latest vehicle refit.

The counsellor in each bus talks issues through with individual children, and refers or seeks assistance if necessary. "What we're doing is helping each young person to deal with their burden, whatever it may be, so they are more resilient and equipped to cope the next time they encounter anything that challenges them."

"It's also important to empower and celebrate what is going well – success breeds resilience."

They have talked to many hundreds of youngsters since starting, discussing problems big and small, everything from friendship dilemmas, to abuse at home and trauma.

LOOKING FOR WORK? TRY THE CLUTHA DISTRICT

The Clutha district has been running a scheme to help match the employment needs of the area with youth in Dunedin who are looking for work.

The Clutha District Council Work Scheme was originally set up five years ago to assist young people to fill job vacancies in the area, developing a system of getting employers and people looking for work in the same room.

Mayor Brian Cadogan said it's proved very successful in reducing the unemployment rate in the Balclutha area, and meeting the needs of their youth. "It would be fair to say it's been transformational - it has economic benefits but we're doing the right thing for our kids – many of whom just needed someone to give them a break."

However there are still more jobs than workers in the Clutha district. Mr Cadogan felt they were doing themselves and the wider region a disservice by not opening it up wider, so in 2014 helped set up a programme that transported some young unemployed Dunedin people into the area to look at a range of job opportunities.

He approached the Otago Community Trust to fund a bus to bring Dunedin young people into Balclutha.

Several jobs have been filled as a result, and a modified scheme will be rolled out again this year to continue the good work. "It has such potential to help Dunedin's high youth unemployment and to support businesses in the region."

"We're very grateful to the Community Trust to support us in what we're doing – it was a leap of faith but we're all on the same page and determined to get in and support our youth."

LITERACY NORTH OTAGO

The Otago Community Trust is supporting literacy projects in North Otago.

It works with Literacy North Otago, a community-based organisation focused on providing adult literacy skills to anyone needing to improve communication skills at any level.

The help they offer is many and varied, but includes assisting people with requirements of their workplace, and with functional literacy such as helping gain a learners drivers licence. It is also increasingly involved in assisting people with digital literacy.

An important part of Literacy North Otago's work is assisting people who have English as a second language. It is currently using Otago Community Trust funding to develop a capability project with the Tongan community to assist with communication skills.

HELP DUNEDIN'S ONLY NIGHT SHELTER

The Dunedin Night Shelter has been fundraising to purchase the buildings it uses in central Dunedin, and has until October 2015 to reach its goal of $600,000.

The Shelter has one building offering accommodation to those who find themselves without anywhere to stay overnight, and also a building providing transitional lodgings for people who for various reasons are struggling to find mainstream accommodation.

The Otago Community Trust has pledged $200,000 towards the appeal.

Chair David Brown said owning the building will give the Dunedin Night Shelter Trust security and reduce costs.

The Shelter operates seven days a week. It doesn't receive government funding, operating entirely on donated funds and grants. It employs a Night Shelter Manager, supported by trained volunteers who stay overnight to supervise and support. All meals are supplied by church groups.

"We rely heavily on the generosity of these people and value their contribution. We are very grateful to the Community Trust for its support towards the building appeal – it has given us so much hope and helped us to go on."

Mr Brown said there are many different circumstances that lead people to need to use the Night Shelter, but the shelter is never empty. It has provided over 4000 bed nights to people in need since starting in 2007. There is now a growing demand in Dunedin for its emergency dinner, bed and breakfast services, and it is presently averaging 60+ bed nights a month. The Shelter is also seeing an increase in female clients with nowhere to go.

SPORT & RECREATION

PROUD TO HELP HOST FIFA UNDER 20 WORLD CUP GAMES

Otago Community Trust funding over the last year has helped Football South with everything from grassroots football to hosting FIFA Under 20 world cup games. Football South Chief Executive Bill Chisholm said it was a thrill for Dunedin to be in a position to host four teams for the FIFA Under 20 World Cup games in May 2015, particularly given that one of the teams – Serbia - went on to win the tournament. “We’re grateful to the Trust for its donation towards this; it provided aspiration for many young players.” But equally important is that the Otago Community Trust funding supports a full range of programmes each year, including football and futsal in schools, talent development, coach education and representative and elite programmes. “It’s part of our leverage and legacy approach that encourages all players, from grassroots through to nurturing the elite players currently coming out of Dunedin.”

POSITIVE SPORTING BEHAVIOUR

Children’s sport should be both positive and enjoyable, which is why the Otago Community Trust has helped fund the Positive Sporting Behaviour Project. Run by Sport Otago, the new initiative is aimed at reducing poor behaviour by spectators at children’s sporting events, and encouraging positive comments around children’s achievements. Sport Otago Chief Executive John Brimble said negative comments impact on the self-esteem of players, and they discourage children from sport.

“We want to make it clear that sport is about enjoyment, and it’s not ok to be negative to your own child, other children, supporters, or the coach or referee who are all volunteers. “They’re kids not the All Blacks – they’re there to have fun.” The Project involves positive sideline packs for schools, clubs, sporting organisations and sporting venues, and posters for schools relating to sportsmanship. There is also information available on-line.

SUNNYVALE SPORTS CENTRE

A major redevelopment of the Sunnyvale Sports Centre in Dunedin has begun, with the Otago Community Trust pledging funds towards the project. Green Island Combined Sports Bodies spokesperson Graeme Wylie said the facility is being adapted from a sports centre to a community centre, to better serve the needs of the whole community. The changes will improve changing, playing and social facilities for the existing sports groups, and at the same time upgraded function areas will allow many local groups, big and small, to meet or hold events. The major revamp includes a new lounge area, adding two squash courts and a hospitality area, an office, replacing the gym floor, and renovating existing facilities. It will be able to cater for functions for around 200 people when complete. It’s hoped work will be finished by early 2016.

AUDI QUATTRO WINTER GAMES NZ 2015

Once again the world’s best winter athletes have been attracted to New Zealand’s Southern Alps for elite sporting competition for the fourth Audi quattro Winter Games NZ from August 21-30. The Otago Community Trust has supported the Winter Games NZ since the inaugural event in 2009, and has again donated funding towards running the Games. Audi quattro Winter Games NZ CEO Arthur Klap said even though it is a large international event, the event runs on a very tight budget, so the Otago

Community Trust’s continued support is hugely appreciated. “The funding we receive from the Otago Community Trust not only ensures that curling and cross-country skiing remain a core part of our programme, it also helps these sports develop their own initiatives for grass-roots participation and elite competition.” Both curling and cross-country are run by non-paid committees drawn mostly from the local communities around Naseby (curling) and the Southern Lakes (cross-country skiing).

NEW TRACK FOR THE CATLINS

Part of the old Catlins railway line has been given a new lease of life.

A 1.5 kilometre section of the former track has been turned into a walking and cycle track, in a partnership between Catlins Promotions Inc and the Department of Conservation. It includes a donation from the Otago Community Trust, used to help clear the overgrown reserve, repair a bridge and put up panels.

Officially opened in May, the track near Table Hill – half an hour's drive south of Owaka – runs through beautiful native bush. It incorporates access off the Matai Falls track.

The original Catlins railway line was built in the early 1900's, and ran from Balclutha to Tahakopa. It was retired in 1971, and is now predominantly farm land.

SAVING PRECIOUS FLORA AND FAUNA

The Otago Community Trust is helping with a major pest control programme in the Hollyford Valley aimed at halting the decline of the area's flora and fauna.

It donated money to the Hollyford Conservation Trust to help restore and protect the native birds and bush ecology in an area of approximately 2500 hectares in the lower Hollyford Valley, and the Hollyford National Park.

The Hollyford Conservation Trust was formed in June 2014 to establish an 'island' sanctuary within the Lower Hollyford Valley in partnership with the Department of Conservation (DoC) and other stakeholders.

The first stage is a comprehensive pest control programme targeting possums, rats and stoats. DoC initiated a control programme, then the Conservation Trust followed-up with ground work across a 900 hectare area designed to lock-in and sustain gains made through the poisoning.

Once pest populations are maintained at negligible levels there are plans for a translocation programme to return native species.

SAVING MONEY AND THE ENVIRONMENT

Dunedin sports organisations are embracing a nation-wide initiative to reduce their impact on the environment.

The Project Litefoot Trust is helping sports clubs by checking their electricity, water use and waste management, then making any changes needed to improve their environmental impact. Improvements are free, and could include installing energy-saving lightbulbs, water-saving devices, hot-water cylinder insulation and waste-sorting stations.

The aim is to reduce environmental waste, including landfill waste, and to encourage all sports club members to reduce and recycle. There are other benefits beyond reducing their environmental footprint, with the clubs involved in the Litefoot project also seeing lower running costs for their clubrooms.

Twenty six Otago clubs have already made changes, and many more are signed up to have an environmental checkup over the coming months.

HELPING OTAGO SCHOOLS TO HELP THE PLANET

The Otago Community Trust is helping Otago schools to reduce the amount of paper going into landfills.

It continues to support the Environmental Education for Resource Sustainability Trust with its national programme that provides bins for school classrooms to recycle cardboard and paper. These recycling efforts are then rewarded annually with a native tree donated to the school for each two cubic metres of recycling.

The charitable trust aims to involve young people in minimising waste and helping the environment.

154 schools and early childhood centres in Dunedin are now involved, last year diverting 921 cubic metres of paper and cardboard from the landfill, while planting 540 native trees. Nationally over 4,000 schools have recycled 36,000 tonnes of paper waste.
